This is of particular concern for certain occupational groups that are exposed to such hazardous substances over many years at much higher concentrations than the general population. It is well-documented that exposure to some chemical substances and to radiation at high doses causes cancer and genetic mutations (changes in genetic information). Not all mutations, however, cause disease (figure 1-4). The relationships between genes, mutations, and disease are becoming clearer with the development of molecular techniques. However, until the health effects of radiation and biological monitoring of ex-A Nuclear Power Worker: Controversy continues regarding the carcinogenic effects of radiation in employees of the posed populations can only provide a gross nuclear weapons and nuclear power industries. indication that genetic changes have occurred and that adverse health effects could follow. damage to cells genetic material represents initial Changes in a cells genetic material (DNA) can be events in a process that may eventually lead to detected at either the chromosomal level, using disease.
